PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Your numismatic focus should now be on Charlotte for the American Numismatic Association's semi-annual Money Show, March 21-23, 2003 at the new downtown convention center. It will be the numismatic event of the decade in North Carolina. This is a complete numismatic event: A large bourse, Numismatic Theater (a series of educational programs), extensive exhibits, club meetings, and more. The show is sponsored locally by the Charlotte Coin Club (Jerry Sajbel, general chair) and the North Carolina Numismatic Association.

NCNA will host a club meeting—open to all—on Saturday, March 22, 9-10:30 in room 215. Entitled "The Numismatic Hobby in North Carolina," this will be a discussion of North Carolina numismatic clubs, publications, events and other resources to help you enjoy the hobby in your home state. Please join us for this meeting. NCNA will also have a staffed table during the event. Please come by, say hello, and pick up a copy of our ad note/bookmark reminder about our October 3-5 Convention and Show in Hickory.

For people who live near Raleigh, the North Carolina Museum of Art's exhibition "Augustus Saint-Gaudens: American Sculptor of the Gilded Age," will be a comprehensive survey of this American master's career and include his numismatic work (primarily the $20 gold coin). The exhibition, featuring approximately 75 of the sculptor's works, begins its national tour at the Museum Feb. 23–May 11, 2003. Admission is charged for the exhibit. For tickets or information, call the Museum Box Office at (919) 715-5923. Notably, the Museum is reaching out to the numismatic community by including club representatives in planning and publicity sessions. I should have more to report about that next issue.

We are still seeking an assistant to the bourse chair for the Hickory convention and an advertising manager to sell Journal ads. If interested, please contact me.

I look forward to seeing many of you in Charlotte.

The Park! Center City Tokens of Charlotte, NC

By Dave Provost

In 1998, the city of Charlotte, NC took a somewhat novel approach to its management and promotion of available parking in the city's Center City area. The city's Department of Transportation (DOT) partnered with the Central Parking Corporation (a private company) to establish the Park! Center City program.

The Park! Center City program was designed to make it easier and less expensive to visit the Center City area. The program administers over 1,000 metered and non-metered on-street parking spaces that offer short-term, inexpensive parking for those coming to the area to shop, conduct business, visit a museum, catch a show or dine at one of the area's many enticing restaurants.

As part of the Park! Center City program, a "Charlotte Coin" was introduced in January of 1999. The $1.00 token was designed for use in parking meters, at participating parking lots, on Charlotte Area Transit System (CATS) buses and the Charlotte Trolley. A new "coin" or token has been produced each year since the original launch.

The circulating transit tokens are bi-metallic, consisting of a brass outer ring and a stainless steel inner ring. The overall diameter of the tokens is 0.9 inches with the center ring measuring 0.25 inches. Each release has also included a limited number of silver commemorative tokens for collectors. Figure 1 presents the obverse and reverse of the 2001 circulating token.

Following are descriptions of each of the tokens ("Charlotte Coins") released thus far by the Park It! Program.

1999 – Charlotte's History of Gold Coinage

The first Park! Center City token celebrated the U.S. branch mint at Charlotte and the city's association with gold coin production between 1838 and 1861. During its 24 years of active service, the Charlotte Mint struck $1.00, $2.50 and $5.00 gold coins, primarily from gold mined in and around North Carolina.

A design competition for the inaugural piece was held in 1998 and was open to all Central Piedmont Community College graphic arts students. The Charlotte DOT sponsored the competition. J. Susan Brown was the winner of the contest and received a $500 scholarship for her drawing of Charlotte's modern skyline.

ANA MONEY SHOW

The American Numismatic Association Money Show will be at the Charlotte Convention Center. The official opening is at noon on Friday, the 21st of March. The bourse and exhibit areas will be open until 6 PM that evening.

On Saturday, the 22nd, the educational exhibits open at 9 AM and the bourse opens at 10 AM; both close at 6 PM. On Sunday, the 23rd, exhibits open at 9 AM and the bourse at 10 AM. Both close at 2 PM.

The bourse will include over two hundred big-name dealers from all over the country and around the world. The bourse also includes displays and sales by several of the world's major mints. On the same floor are tables representing many regional and specialist clubs. NCNA and the Charlotte Coin Club will have tables manned continuously.

The Educational Exhibits are located just outside the Bourse and are open one hour before the bourse itself opens, so you can visit there without loosing any time at the dealers' tables. The exhibits will include both competitive and non-competitive exhibits, including one of the finest examples known of the Charlotte 1849-C one dollar with an open wreath.

Many specialist organizations will hold meetings during the show. NCNA and its member clubs will hold a meeting at 9 AM on Saturday. It is entitled "The Numismatic Hobby in North Carolina." There will be an informal discussion of the various clubs, shows, and activities throughout North Carolina.

Another meeting at 10 AM on both Saturday and Sunday is "Coin Collecting Basics" by Jane Colvard and Chris Connell.

The Numismatic Theater will offer a series of talks by experts from all over the country. The schedule follows:

Friday, March 21

12 Noon	"Numismatic Heritage of India" K. Visweswaran
1 PM	"Answers For The Answer Man" Alan Herbert
2 PM	"Collecting North Carolina History" Dave Provost
3 PM	"Twelve Centuries of the English Penny" Halbert Carmichael
4 PM	"Don't Mess with the Empress" Prudence Fitts

Saturday, March 22

10 AM	"Oldest Living Prospector" Don Kagin
11 AM	"Art of Augustus Saint-Gaudens" Robert Pedolsky
12 Noon	"Personalities in Numismatics" John and Nancy Wilson
1 PM	"The Tokens of Talbot, Allum & Lee" Gerald L. Kochel
2 PM	"Penny's Progress: England's Penny Through 1400 Years" Arthur M. Fitts III
3 PM	"Getting Your Family Involved in Numismatics" Gary Lewis
4 PM	"Advanced Collecting of Morgan & Peace Dollars" Michael S. Fey and Jeff Oxman
5 PM	"Christian Icons on Byzantine Coins" Chris Connell

Sunday, March 23

11 AM	"Confederate Cent-A New Look" Harold Levi
12 Noon	"Confederate Metallic Coinage...The Reality" George A. Corell

There will be several tours available including self-guided tours of the nearby Federal Reserve Branch and a tour of the Reed Gold Mine on Saturday.

It's interesting to note that while the commemorative theme of the token is Charlotte's history of gold coin production, the design of the piece offers no direct tie-in. I have not yet been able to uncover any information that would help resolve this apparent thematic conflict.

Just 50 of the special silver collector's edition of this token were produced. Thus, an instant "key date" was created for the series. The Roger Williams Mint struck the pieces in 0.999 fine silver. In talking with Clement Gibson, current DOT Special Programs Manager, I learned that the small production run was the result of the group having no previous experience with collectors. To prevent having more of the tokens than they could sell, it was decided to produce just a small number. The group soon realized that 50 pieces was far too conservative a mintage; future issues would all be at least ten-fold larger.

2000 – Queen Charlotte Sophia

The obverse of the 2000 token features the bust of Queen Charlotte Sophia (1744-1818), for whom the city of Charlotte was named in 1768; it was originally called Charlotte Town. Area residents chose the name in an attempt to gain political favor with King George III during times of increasing tension between England and the colonies. Figure 2 shows the commemorative obverse of the token. Figure 3 presents the common reverse design used on all issues since 2000.

Before her marriage to George III, Charlotte was a member of the royal family of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, a small duchy in northeastern Germany; Mecklenburg County draws its name from the Queen's homeland.

Charlotte married George III on September 8, 1761 immediately after arriving in England from Germany. She was a well-educated young woman, being fluent in French and German and having received formal education in history, politics, mathematics and philosophy among other subjects. She was also an accomplished harpsichordist. Charlotte learned just enough English on her trip to England to complete her wedding vows, but soon after received private tutoring in English so that she could communicate more readily with her new countrymen.

An interesting note concerning Queen Charlotte — the King and Queen spent much of their time apart as Charlotte preferred to maintain a country residence while George spent most of his time in London. To make his wife's time in London as pleasurable as possible, George III purchased what he believed was a suitable residence for his Queen — a little place known as Buckingham's Palace. Have you heard of it?

The edge-numbered silver commemorative edition of the 2000 token sold out its production of 500 pieces in less than two months. The pieces originally sold for $19.95. Since 2000, Silvertowne has struck all of the silver collector's edition tokens. They each contain one ounce of 0.999 fine silver

2001 – Charlotte Trolley

In 2001, the "Charlotte Coin" commemorated the 110th anniversary of Charlotte's first electric streetcar run. The first trip departed from Independence Square at the intersection of Trade and Tryon streets on 18 May 1891.

The design used on the token is based on a picture by Charlotte artist/illustrator Werner Willis. The original illustration, entitled "The Dilworth Trolley," features a late 19th century streetcar of the Charlotte Street Railway Company. Prints of the original are available from the Charlotte Rescue Mission (CRM); it is one of several pieces Mr. Willis has allowed the CRM to sell prints of to help raise funds for its work. Electric streetcars replaced Charlotte's horse-drawn cars in 1891 and were a significant factor in the growth of the city's suburbs. Figure 3 shows the commemorative obverse of the 2001 token.

Referring to the 2001 design, Brett Vines, then Special Programs Manager for the Charlotte DOT, stated '"The Charlotte Trolley has played a big role in Charlotte's history, and featuring the trolley on the 2001 Charlotte Coin is our way of paying tribute."

The 2001 collector's edition of the token has the highest mintage of any of the tokens to date, 1,000 of the numbered silver pieces were produced. Limited quantities are still available from the Park It! office for $20.00 each.

2002 - 40th Anniversary of the Charlotte-Arequipa "Sister City" Relationship

In 1962, Charlotte entered into a "Sister City" relationship with Arequipa, Peru, an important commercial and industrial city in that country's southern region that is often called Peru's "Second City." In 2002, this cultural relationship was commemorated on the Charlotte Coin.

Arequipa, founded in 1540 by Manuel Garci de Carbajal, is often referred to as "La Ciudad Blanca" or "The White City." This is because much of the city has been built using sillar, a petrified volcanic ash that is pearl-white in color. Arequipa is at the foot of the Misti volcano, part of the western range of the Andes. The city derives its name from the Quechua phrase "Arequipai" which means, "Yes, stay." (Quechua was the language of the Inca Empire.)

The token features Arequipa's Cathedral. The large neo-renaissance building occupies one entire side of the city's Main Square. It features two stylized bell towers and a Gothic arch, all visible on the commemorative obverse of the token; the Misti volcano is seen in the background. Figure 4 shows the commemorative obverse of the 2002 token.

A total of 750 of the numbered collector's edition of the token were produced. Limited quantities are still available from the Park It! office for $20.00 each.

2003 - Hezekiah Alexander Homesite

For 2003, the Park It! token features the Hezekiah Alexander Homesite. Alexander, with his wife and children, settled in colonial Mecklenburg County around 1767. Active in local politics, Alexander was elected to the Mecklenburg Committee of Public Safety in 1774 and was part of the committee that drafted and signed the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence. Later, he was elected as a delegate to the North Carolina Constitutional Convention and helped draft the state's first constitution. His house, a two-story stone structure built in 1774, is the oldest surviving structure in Charlotte and Mecklenburg County and is located on the grounds of the Charlotte Museum of History. Figure 5 shows the commemorative obverse featuring Alexander's "Rock House."

The silver collector's edition of the piece is currently available and priced at $20.00. Just 500 of the 2003 silver issue have been produced.

The Charlotte Park It! token series, in its fairly brief history, has already produced a number of interesting, history-rich issues. And with Charlotte having played such an important part in North Carolina's growth and development, I'm sure there are plenty of remaining anniversaries to commemorate in the years to come! Keep 'em coming Charlotte!

To purchase any of the available tokens, contact the Park It! office at 704-375-3177. Happy Collecting!
